1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

DISCOVER SINCE

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are employed in the health care industry has increased by 50 percent. The health care industry is now the second largest employer in the United States, with over 15 million people working in the field. This growth is driven by a number of factors, including an aging population, advances in medical technology, and a growing emphasis on preventive care. As the industry continues to expand, it will be important for the United States to ensure that it has enough health care professionals to meet the demand. This will require a combination of measures, including increasing the number of people who enter the field, improving the training and education of health care professionals, and ensuring that the industry is able to attract and retain talent.
